I represent Thermal Supply, a commercial refrigeration design and wholesaler. I understand your concern with HFC's but in this line of business there are no alternatives available until January 2026. All the commercial manufacturer's have nothing ready or available yet. A2L refrigerants will be moving in but that won't happen until 2026.

What you're saying with this new ruling is that no large refrigeration system being installed in Washington can take place until 2026. I believe Washington needs to go with the National dates and not the ones you've picked.
