

Robin Schwartz

To whom it may concern:

I am a parent and community member living in the Duwamish Valley, identified as one of 16 WA communities that are overburdened by air pollution. My children and their peers are impacted every day by the cumulative impacts of legacy and ongoing pollution, including higher rates of asthma, cancers, and much shorter life spans than other communities.

It is a fact that transportation emissions are the largest source of air pollution. I urge the Department of Ecology to address or decrease pollution from transportation. Our children's lives and futures depend on it.

Please add rules to decrease or address transportation emissions to your list of considerations to improve air quality.

Thank you,

Robin Schwartz

South Park resident