

Jason Arnhill

While I agree that emergency power is important for the efficient running of a data center, diesel generators are the worst solution for our environment, health, and sustainability. A battery storage system fueled by renewable energy sources, hydrogen fuel cells, or natural gas generators would provide a much cleaner alternative to the diesel generators that will keep Washington on the path toward a carbon neutral or even carbon negative future. Thank you.