

James O'Halloran

Data centers are a giveaway of community resources - land, water, noise, pollution and usually tax breaks - to the small class of billionaires with no interest in the community's long term well being, in return for just a handful of permanent jobs. Don't stick members of your community with this burden!