

Zero Waste Washington

Overall, the scope looks comprehensive. I just have a few suggested additions:

Under household products, I would add "plastic products." There are items that do not strictly fit under the list of items you have included, such as combs and beauty products, home-use medical devices, etc. These are not marketed for children.

Under automotive products, I would add brake pads. In our study, it was very concerning to find phthalates in our testing of brake pad samples. I would also include other car and truck components such as tires and retreaded tires.

Thank you.

Sincerely,
Heather Trim