I am writing to ask that the rule making process focus on protecting consumers from toxic products that negatively impact health. I myself and many of friends and loved ones are extremely sensitive to many chemicals currently used in many of the cosmetic and self-care products. Please look to examples like Vetiver Hair Spa in Issaquah that have been successful in implementing a toxic-free (or super low-toxic) hair coloring, styling, and cutting business. With strong, consumer-focused rules, Washington State can lead the country in eliminating toxic chemicals from consumer cosmetic and self-care products. Thank you for the opportunity to comment and we will stay engaged with the process.
