

Dan Solitz

Re: Final closure vegetation

Would it be more prudent to inventory the existing vegetation immediately outside the IDF boundary and on the existing IDF berm, that is volunteer and has naturally established itself, before deciding what to plant on the cover? Which plant species is specified should be able to hold its own against the surrounding species, or be more aggressive and have a wimpy root system. A timely public meeting would be useful.

Respectful submitted

Dan Soliitz