I see a few comments about outdated material; this doesn't inspire confidence that what is provided meets regulatory requirements. I just don't think 120 days is sufficient for an individual to review this draft permit and compare all parts of it to the law and ensure one Ecology is holding the permittees responsible to the appropriate laws and that Ecology isn't overstepping their authority. It took Ecology 14 years to respond to the comments from the 2012 public comment period, and we are expected to review more pages and compare this draft to WAC 173-303 (Dangerous Waste Regulations) in 120 days. Additionally, we apparently need to review and compare a previous revision identify the most up to date information. I respectfully request an extension to the public comment period by 90 days.
