

david gladstone

My wife and I are opposed to any marine finfish net pen installations in Puget Sound. History has shown that all operators of such efforts are only interested in how much money they can make with the least effort to protect Puget Sound waters. We (humans) have shown how badly we take care of these waters; thus it's time to curtail any activities of this sort in the Sound and give nature the opportunity to rehab itself without human interference.