

Drew Alcoser

There are several steps in creating this product. What will be the guardrails enacted to verify the safety for living beings, the people, the land, the animals, and the ecosystem? Along each step of the process to bring the product to market, in my view, I see many points to account for that will increase the carbon footprint, air quality, all contributing to emissions--ignoring the climate crisis.