Rebecca Belford

Our shoreline needs to be protected. Public access preserved. Removing constraints on developing this land is only for the few and harms the many Developments along shorelines are for the wealthy. Removing checks and balances threatens the long-term health of this sensitive property and benefits only the developer. Homes may cost more in these areas, but that could be a good check against over developing.