Hello and thank you for considering my comment.
Boundaries are changing due to sea level rise. Estuary habitat has been lost due to development and much of what remains is threatened by rising ocean levels. It is important to change our approach to allow shorelines and estuaries to naturally migrate inland as sea levels rise. We must: No new buildings or replacements in areas vulnerable to sea level rise. No shoreline armoring. Consider expanding shoreline jurisdiction into adjoining flood plains and critical areas that will be affected by sea level rise.
