Amy Bush

The Snoqualmie Valley is a very special place to live and work and it is the ancestral home of the Snoqualmie Indian Tribe. It's natural beauty is unparalleled and it should be preserved, without exception, for future generations. This project is too close to residential areas and too risky for an area this pristine.

I will not list all of the potential drawbacks to this project as I would only be re-stating what has already been said. We all know that there is not upside for residents and that projects of this kind harm communities. The bottom line is that there must be another area that would be better suited. What other areas still need to be explored? This is now a state issue so shouldn't the entire state be considered? Why build here when the community is completely opposed to it?