

Anonymous Anonymous

Many people in WA live alone - but all too often food is packaged for families. and I am forced to buy too much That's how waste happens in my house.

I often have near- expiration food and other food to donate - good canned food- but for years my local food bank did not publicize ways to drop off food (now they do- at local sites in barrels) but there should be more convenient ways for households to donate all kinds of food.

Restaurants also often offer portions I don't want. Not all of it can be taken home; or it-might spoil before I got home because I'm going other places first.

Some high end food waste could be eaten by animals making small farms and home farming more productive