

Steven Finn

This is great to see. It's important to note that the best way to accelerate progress to the 50% reduction goal is through prevention. Make use of measurement and behavior change tools to avoid the occurrence of waste in the first place, and thereby maximize financial and environmental savings while freeing up resources to address root cause solutions for systemic solutions to hunger. See Leanpath's automated solutions for the foodservice sector here: <https://www.leanpath.com/>