

Patricia Atree-Myers

The biggest problem I have as a single person is grocery stores packaging products only for a family of six. Especially produce which can't even go in the freezer. There used to be 8 oz sized cans of vegetables and beans, now it's nearly all 16 oz. I recognize that for the stores it's a price point thing, bigger can, more dollars per sale, but it is terribly wasteful.