

Jody Thorsen Grage

To test for only nine heavy metals, nitrogen and selected pathogens is grossly inadequate. Until other chemicals, micro-plastics, pharmaceuticals, and the infamous alphabet soup of ubiquitous super toxins now headed by PFAS (Per- and PolyFluoroAlkyl Substances) are included in the testing, this permit should not be issued. Good planets are hard to find. Taking such miserable care of the one we're on is not an adequate strategy for survival.