Biosolids need to be dealt with, but not by reintroducing these toxic materials back into our soils and water ways. Our vegetables and fruits are only as good as the soils that we grow them in. We should be rebuilding soils, not contaminating them. There is NO evidence that biosolids are safe. Period. It's time that we interrupt the legacy of doing what's convenient and easy in the moment while blindly ignoring its future ramifications. It's past time that profit and greed are valued over the health and well being of future generations. I say NO!
