

Jean Mann

The application of sewage biosolids does not have "nonsignificant impact," as evidenced by the State of Maine's experience with the degradation of agricultural lands in that state. Washington State needs to avoid similar negative effects in our state.