

Mardel and Roger Tanquist

As one who has supported the terrific efforts of The Department of Ecology, I am disturbed by the direction of Industrial Depackaging.

It appears that sufficient regulations are not in place to ensure that food waste is separated from packaging—resulting in the packaging having to go to landfills.

Washington's rules need clear definitions, contamination limits, and policies that maximize the diversion of recyclables and organics.