

Deborah Grant

Washington state needs to require that depackagers meet a minimum recycling rate. In addition, easily separable packaging needs to be pulled apart before it reaches a depackager. Current depackaging machines are creating contaminated food slurries and packaging that is no longer recyclable.