

Helen Miller

The only conscionable action is to fully clean up the Rayonier Mill site even if the upfront cost is higher. We must think of the people who follow us and the interconnectedness of our ecosystems, particularly as climate changes and people move to cooler climates and more abundant water sources. Any later discoveries of failed containments will only burden the people who live here with more costs. This we've learned with Hanford and the Duwamish. The list goes on. Thank you.