

Christina Miller

Vancouver lake needs to be high priority for clean up. The lake is a refuge not only to numerous animal/birds but for people as well. I fell in Love with life and the world again after spending time there during an extremely difficult time in my life. The lake and its surrounding area gives those of us that do not have property or means to travel, a place to retreat to when we need to find ourselves, connect with ourselves and nature. With our city ever growing it needs clean up to be priority now more than ever so people can continue to benefit from one of Vancouver's great tucked away sanctuaries.