Rebecca Malcom

Vancouver Lake is in great need of improvements. This body of water is important to the local ecology and it's ecosystems, and unfortunately, has been polluted. In it's current condition, it is a risk to public health, as well as a risk to the wildlife and nature that surround it. Vancouver Lake is an important part of the Columbia River system, and in dire need of improvement and conservation efforts.