

Matt Roach

Given the threat to protein supply that has occurred during the current COVID-19 pandemic, investing in a sustainable food source such as farmed fish, makes very good sense. The health benefits of fish are well documented and here is an opportunity to provide a healthy protein alternative to other meats.