

Vicki Halbakken

I am writing because I'm concerned about Cooke Aquaculture expansion in the Salish sea. The Salish is a fragile ecosystem and we should be doing everything we can to protect it! Expansion will only add stress to an already stressed situation. I am concerned about the significant negative impact on water quality on both human health and the health of native fish. an expansion adds pollution, increases viruses, parasites and disease. Corporate greed over a clean environment? NO!