As a resident looking down on the Cook fish farm I dislike the eighteen wheel trucks that come down our residential street to provide modified feed for the fish, who then poop into our Rich Passage water. I've had some personal encounters with the management of Cook and I find that they will say anything to keep their operation going regardless of regulations. I don't think that Cook should be relied upon to police the quality of the water. I recommend that an independent agency do the testing.
