

Anonymous Anonymous

This is a great solution to be sustainable in our own efforts to be food secure, and to raise native fish of Washington. With these fish being tripled, they can not ever reproduce, and will not hurt any native population or the genetics specific to each watershed in the area. Less importing of our own food, the better.