

Paul Simmons

Will the pollution below the net pens be any different than what it was before? If not, then how can you allow this to continue? Will they be using the same feed, with antibiotics as before? If so, then how can you allow this to continue? I don't understand what the difference is between raising Atlantic salmon or steelhead and why the pollution will be any different. Sounds like a bad idea to me.