

Malcolm Marwick

It is important to have food security, supply from local sources provides employment and control over the environmental impact.

Raising sterile fish poses no risk to the local habitat and is also native to the region.