Aquaculture has been a very responsible and vital partner of the community. It traditionally provides employment for many in mostly rural areas. It provides critical commerce and spin offs making communities vibrant wherever they exist. Cooke's has been a responsible partner in the communities on the East Coast for over 40 years. Aquaculture is a proven responsible manner to raise and supply a much needed product to consumers. This is an industry that has deep roots in various countries for many years providing safe responsible products to consumers. It would be a gross negligence on the part of Government not to allow the industry to develop further. The risks are proven small with a responsible company such as Cooke's and the benefits plenty.
