

Doug Simms

I fully support Cooke Aquaculture Pacific's move to produce triploid steelhead at all their marine sites.

As we have endured covid 19 over the past several months, the importance for locally produced foods from both land and sea has become more apparent than ever. Also, considering the underwhelming footprint it takes to produce 10,000 metric tonnes of sustainable locally grown healthy protein in Washington waters and the local jobs it provides makes this a no brainer.