

Lyn Kerschen

No steelhead! Cooke has had their chance at responsible farming and blew it. Studies have increasingly shown that fish raised in open water pens can have significant negative impacts on wild salmon populations and the environment. The practice usually sees tens of thousands or even hundreds of thousands of fish raised in close proximity to each other, where they can exchange diseases and parasites like sea lice. I strongly opposed to Cooke's permits. L. Kerschen