

Nick Falls

To whom it may concern. This company should never be permitted to raise farmed non-native fish in the first place. Now they swing money in front of politicians and officials to keep they're profits up and pockets stuffed. They care not of our fragile eco system they helped destroy by neglecting the nets. Changing the type of fish won't change the company's way of operating. They caused irreparable damage to our sea with the release of thousands of Atlantic salmon. They knew about the torn nets but wouldn't fix the issue. If you allow them to continue it only proves my point that our government doesn't care about us or the environment. The only thing that matters to them is the money.
