

susan bullen

Cruise ship "scrubbers" convert air pollution into water pollution and dump fossil fuel combustion wastewater straight into the ocean. In high traffic inlets like Puget Sound, the build up of scrubber dumping has serious implications on endangered species like killer whales.