

Mike Scott

Cruise ships are the SUVs of the seas; or coastlines, because they rarely venture far from shore, being top-heavy and not sea worthy like the graceful, elegant "greyhounds of the sea" ocean liners of yore. These hideous things can burn far cleaner fuel, and there's no reason but their owners' greed for them not to. Not at all.