

Don Parsons

The cruise ship industry needs close scrutiny for all discharge of waste, trash and air/water pollution. If they can't make a profit without cleaning up their act then they should not be in business at all. Their polluting history has not been a good one and how else can we regulate any industry without taking their history into account.