

Colleen Rodger

Cruise ships have been polluting our oceans for far too long. This revelation just adds to my disgust at their unwillingness to take responsibility for their own trash. Allowing their participation to be voluntary has not worked. I hope you see the importance of giving these MOUs more teeth so they are forced to change their ways. Our oceans cannot take this abuse any longer. It's protect the ocean now or doom most of life on this planet to extinction. If you are really following what scientist are saying, we are out of time for voluntary acts to protect our environment. The consequences of insufficient action are mass extinction, including humans. Do you want that price to be on your heads.