

Lisa-May Reynolds

I was lucky or I should say blessed enough in my youth to have spent a couple of years sailing in the Puget Sound , long before the cruise industry was as present as it is today. I enjoyed sailing, swimming, and fishing in much cleaner waters then.

It pains me to read of the current situation with pollution in the Sound and the resulting dwindling fish populations and failing health of the regions ecosystem, along with the magnificent Orcas.

Please Ban Scrubbers and the damage they contribute too.

Better yet ban cruise ships , make everyone go green and use wind power to truly 'sail' in the Sound.