

Julie Kanoff

Cruise ship wastewater is waste and should never be released into public waters. Cruise ships need to behave like any travel trailer use and take waste to a dumping station or have it removed from the ship by a service provider at sea and then disposed of properly at a treatment facility. Using our oceans and beautiful sounds and bays as a gigantic disposal of all sorts of contaminants is wrong, harmful and should never be allowed. Our environment and our Mother Earth and living things suffer from this needless practice.