

Bernadette Belcastro

In high traffic inlets like Puget Sound, the build up of scrubber dumping is compounding and has serious implications on endangered species like killer whales. When are we going to learn that when we upset the balance of nature we are not only taking away the chance of future generations seeing these mammals but also we are slowly killing ourselves. We need to clean up our waters, not make them more of a dumping ground.