

Thom Neighbors

It's high time the cruise industry step up and become responsible members of world society. Waste from ships can be removed and disposed of properly and still allow for high profits.