

Ann Downey

Why must there be constant pleas from the public to protect our wildlife and wild places? This respect for our planet and those trying to naturally thrive should be part of any business plan put forward by any company wishing to use the environments that belong to all of us.

They do not own where they are, and they must respect it and leave it in tact for all of humanity and wildlife. If they cannot abide by that simple mandate, then their business plan is unworkable and they either go back to the drawing board, or cease and desist.

If we wish to call this planet home, we must do all necessary to save it.