

Barbara Levenstien

Ban scrubbers. The cruise industry (and other water-going vessels) has been getting away with murder for so long. They are allowed to register anywhere to avoid taxes and regulations. They blatantly contaminate the oceans and waterways. They use dirty fuels which contaminate the air as well as the waters. They dump sewage. They are floating petrie dishes. They not only endanger the environment directly and indirectly but also endanger the health of humans and other living things including marine life.