

Michael Koslosky

Puget Sound is a dynamic body of water supporting untold numbers of organisms from our resident Orca to microscopic nanoplankton. This living ecosystem needs protection from excess nutrients in order to function at optimal levels now and into the future. I support regulatory efforts to monitor and stem the flow of excess nutrients into Puget Sound.