

mark keller

This is yet another step to keep hard working people from raising their own food without more government red tape. I can see this type of control for large dairy or feedlot but not for small operations designed to feed a family. what next, will we need permits to breathe the air? Stop these steps at government overreach.