I'm for some of this as far as large commercial farms. Small hobby farms not so much. However, I believe there needs to be some sort of code that would determine the amount of animals allowed on acreage. I see way too many animals on a postage stamp size lot. Not only is it inhumane but it is also very unhealthy to both animals and humans. The feces left by the animals can over time contaminate land and wells. Not to mention the smell, flies, and rodents it brings to a community.
