

Tawna Hubbard

Concentrated toxins from over populated cattle lots seeps into ground water, runs into nearby streams during seasonal high water events, destroys soil health for future farming needs to grow ground crops and must implement mitigation strategies to avoid permanent damage to surrounding acreage