The CAFO rules go way too far and are too general allowing government (Washington Dept of Ecology), to stop anyone from growing their own food. Small farmers are the most self-regulating people I've ever dealt with. If you are REALLY concerned about ecological matters, you only need to visit any big city to see where all the pollution comes from. You are regulating the WRONG people. I oppose the rules until you clearly state all of its intentions and concentrate on the real polluters.

Thank you,
Kurt Snyder
