

Ramona Rommereim

We oppose further regulation of private property. Current Federal and State regulations cover this area adequately and do not need anymore confusing overlay of additional regulations. The agriculture community is the best steward of private land, Ecology would much better focusing on urban pollution sources. The eastern and western sides of Washington can not be lumped together in any plan, the geography and farming practices are too varied.